Definiciones empleadas

Primer nivel de atención (OMS, 2011): "El primer nivel de atención es el más cercano a la población, o sea, el nivel del primer contacto. Está dado, en consecuencia, como la organización de los recursos que permite resolver las necesidades de atención básicas y más frecuentes, que pueden ser resueltas por actividades de promoción de salud, prevención de la enfermedad y por procedimientos de recuperación y rehabilitación. Es la puerta de entrada al sistema de salud. Se caracteriza por contar con establecimientos de baja complejidad, como consultorios, policlínicas, centros de salud, etc. Se resuelven aproximadamente 85% de los problemas prevalentes. Este nivel permite una adecuada accesibilidad a la población, pudiendo realizar una atención oportuna y eficaz".

Dispositivo médico (GHTF, 2005): se entiende por "dispositivo médico" todo instrumento, aparato, utensilio, máquina, implante, reactivo in vitro o calibrador, software, material o producto similar o relacionado que no logra el efecto principal perseguido en o sobre el organismo humano por medios farmacológicos, inmunológicos o metabólicos y está concebido para ser empleado en seres humanos con alguno(s) de los siguientes fines:

- el diagnóstico, la prevención, la vigilancia, el tratamiento o el alivio de enfermedades;
- el diagnóstico, la vigilancia, el tratamiento, el alivio o la compensación de una lesión;
- la investigación, la sustitución, la modificación o el apoyo de la anatomía o de un proceso fisiológico;
- el apoyo o el mantenimiento de la vida;
- el control de la concepción;
- la desinfección de otros dispositivos médicos; y
- el suministro de información con fines médicos o diagnósticos mediante el examen in vitro de muestras extraídas del cuerpo humano.
