The Role of the Media

• Suicide is a phenomenon that is already taboo and stigmatized
• The media have a key role to play in shaping public perceptions surrounding suicide and are therefore responsible media reporting is an integral approach to suicide prevention
  • The Werther Effect
  • The Papageno effect

• Irresponsible reporting on suicide has occurred frequently in our local setting
Sensitization Workshops

• First Media sensitization workshop on Suicide in the region in March 2017 which included a session to draft National Guidelines

• Subsequent meetings were held locally and virtually to refine guidelines

• Guidelines we officially launched on World Suicide Prevention Day 2018

Guidelines for Reporting on Suicide

Suicide is a national health issue in Trinidad and Tobago. The media perform an integral role in the responsible reporting of this issue. The way in which suicide is reported can either contribute to suicide contagion or encourage individuals in vulnerable conditions to seek help. Suicide Contagion or “Copycat Suicide” occurs when one or more suicides are reported in a way that contributes to further suicides.

Points to Note when Reporting Suicide

1. Suicide is preventable.
2. Always include a message of hope at the end of all media reports.
3. Include local help resources and encourage people to seek help.

11 BEST PRACTICES FOR RESPONSIBLE SUICIDE REPORTING BY THE MEDIA

INSTEAD OF THIS
1. Describing details of the method or location of death.
2. Including words and video/photographs that might be painful to loved ones.
3. Publishing the identity of minors, including names, addresses, and images.
4. Providing a simplistic explanation for suicide or attributing it to a single cause such as stress or life loss.
5. Normalizing suicidal behavior as an acceptable or common response to life's hardships.
6. Using sensational headlines or prominent placement in newspapers, including describing suicide as an epidemic.
7. Using stigmatizing language such as successful or预防suicide, failed attempts, or committed suicide.
8. Reporting the content or details of a suicide note.
9. Speculating or quoting the opinions of first responders on the reason for the suicide.
10. Glorifying or describing the suicide as a valiant act.
11. Referring to persons as ‘suicidal’ or ‘the mentally ill’.

DO THIS INSTEAD
1. Exercise caution. You may mention that someone has died by suicide, but do not explicitly describe the method and location.
2. Use images and words that engender hope and encourage persons to seek help.
3. Use general details such as gender and age.
4. Explain the complexity of suicide by including the warning signs, risk factors, and coping strategies.
5. Explain that suicide is a public health issue and that most persons experiencing hardships do not die by suicide.
6. Inform the audience about the event without using sensational or dramatic headlines.
7. Use non-stigmatizing words like “died by suicide” or “took his/her own life”.
8. Share that a note was found and is being examined by the police.
9. Provide facts. Research data from credible sources such as the World Health Organization or the Mental Health Unit, Ministry of Health in Trinidad and Tobago.
10. Present a balanced story on the person.
11. Use person-first language such as “a person contemplating suicide” or “people living with a mental illness.”

Life of abuse ends in suicide

The woman who drank poison and wrote a note in hospital that she was physically and emotionally abused for half of her life, has died. Rachel Madoo, of Felicity, died on Thursday three days after she drank an insecticide. Madoo’s mother, Deomatie Madoo, said her daughter told her she consumed the poison after she was beaten, dragged and slammed against a wall. The mother said she begged her daughter to live with her and stay away from her abuser. She claimed that the man also abused Madoo’s 13-year-old daughter.

A note written on an envelope by Madoo explained why wanted she wanted to end her life. “I live in an abusive relationship with (name called) for 17 years. I have a 13 year old daughter whom he also abused as well. He would beat me and always tell me I have a man. Until on Monday he came home and started cursing and beating me until I got fed up and drank poison. I am presently in Mount Hope and I need help. My husband work in the army. I fear for my life please help me please”, Madoo wrote.

Girl, 15, commits suicide

In the final entry in her diary, 15-year-old Rehana Nandlal wrote that she and her 42-year-old lover would do what they had to do and then end their lives. The Barrackpore West Secondary student carried out her side of the pact on Tuesday. She was found with a bottle of weedicide at her side on the stairway of a church near her home on Monday. Rehana was rushed to the San Fernando General Hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival. The troubled teen, who lost both parents to illnesses several year ago, ran away from her home on Monday.

“She always got good grades in school and I would always get good reports about her,” said Tara, who had been her sister’s guardian for the last 18 months.

Suicide after shooting outside ex-girlfriend's house

POLICE are investigating a suicide and shooting in Siparia. Dillon Bedassie fired several shots outside his ex-girlfriend’s home before daybreak on Friday before he turned the gun on himself. In the hail of gunfire, the ex-girlfriend’s 17 year old relative, Jonathan Moore, was outside and he was struck twice. Police said Moore was hit in the chest and foot. He was taken for emergency surgery at the San Fernando General Hospital. Bedassie died at the scene.

December 21st 2018, Trinidad Express
A domestic dispute has claimed the life of two police officers. Dead are woman police officer Rackel Kipps and her male companion Kevin Youksee.

Youksee shot Kipps dead before turning the gun on himself. The murder-suicide has left the couple's two-year-old daughter without parents.

According to reports, residents of Spring Valley, Mt D'or, heard three gunshots around 11 am. Kipps was reportedly shot twice before Youksee, who was attached to the Tunapuna police Station, turned the gun on himself. Kipps died at the family's home while Youksee died while at hospital. Investigations are continuing into the matter. More details in tomorrow's Guardian.

How do we know if these guidelines are effective?
Abstract

This paper examines a method for monitoring the reporting practices of media houses in Trinidad and Tobago with respect to deaths by suicide from the period September 2018 to present. Specifically, this paper analyzes the writing styles, chiefly, words, phrases and images of an assortment of newspaper articles by using Quantitative Content Analysis to establish patterns in reporting and measure adherence to the National Guidelines for Responsible Reporting on Suicide.

Newspaper articles were accessed via official online newspaper websites as well as utilizing Google Alerts to have direct links sent to established email accounts. These articles were reviewed using the National Guidelines outlining eleven (11) best practices and the varying media houses were contacted to discuss the content of the article. A total of three (3) major newspapers were represented within the study and thus the process of monitoring responsible media reporting commenced.

Monitoring and Evaluation Framework

Each article is evaluated on eleven (11) domains to correspond to the best practices in the national guidelines:

1. Details on method and/or location
2. Use of Videos and Photographs
3. Published identity of minors
4. Providing a Simplistic explanation
5. Normalizing suicidal behavior
6. Use of Sensational Headlines
7. Use of Stigmatizing language
8. Reporting content/details of suicide note
9. Quoting opinions of others
10. Use of glorifying language
11. Not using person-first language
Monitoring and Evaluation Framework

Scoring – One point is allocated to each guideline that is violated.

Articles are also given a rating based on the following:
1. Providing information on support
2. Providing statistics/data from credible sources
3. Providing information on coping strategies
Monitoring and Evaluation Framework

• Notifications of articles are received as they happen through a google alerts and a subsequent evaluation of the article is done on the same day

• 53 articles evaluated over 11 month period (September 2018 – July 2019)

• Number evaluated as good bad and neutral:

Follow up

The following information is also recorded in the M&E framework

• Date accessed
• Whether the organization was contacted
• Additional comments
Limitations

• Currently M&E only done for electronic newspaper articles however contact is made with media house when live streaming that violate the guidelines come to our attention
• If the words “suicide” is not used in article it is missed
Next Steps

1. Disseminate more widely with periodic in-house follow up
2. Provide supplementary information periodically to maintain relevance of issue
3. Having each report evaluated by more than one person and improve inter-rater reliability.
4. Collaborate with the Trinidad and Tobago Publisher and Broadcasters Association to have the guidelines integrated into the Broadcasters ethics code
5. Document the development and monitoring process as a Special report in the PAHO Journal of Public health
Thank you!
