Evidence I

- Tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship (TAPS) increase tobacco use and that comprehensive bans on TAPS decrease tobacco use.

- International evidence indicates that comprehensive bans are effective in reducing tobacco sales and tobacco consumption.

- The impact of TAPS bans may be even more dramatic in low- and middle-income countries than in high-income countries.

Monograph 19: The Role of the Media in Promoting and Reducing Tobacco Use

Evidence II

• The tobacco industry spends billions of dollars yearly to market its products.

• Using increasing sophisticated and covert forms of tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship (TAPS), the tobacco industry links its products with success, fun and glamour.

• In many countries, tobacco is promoted wherever youths can be easily accessed such as in the movies, on the Internet, in fashion magazines and at music and sports events.

Evidence III

• TAPS also help to reassure current smokers and create a climate where smoking is seen as normal social behavior, and create an illusion that tobacco is just an ordinary consumer product.

• TAPS increase smoking initiation among youths, even brief exposures can influence adolescents.

Article 13 - Tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship

1. Parties recognize that a comprehensive ban on advertising, promotion and sponsorship would reduce the consumption of tobacco products.

2. Each Party shall, in accordance with its constitution or constitutional principles, undertake a comprehensive ban of all tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship. This shall include, subject to the legal environment and technical means available to that Party, a comprehensive ban on cross-border advertising, promotion and sponsorship originating from its territory. In this respect, within the period of five years after entry into force of this Convention for that Party, each Party shall undertake appropriate legislative, executive, administrative and/or other measures and report accordingly in conformity with Article 21.
Article 13 - Tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship

4. As a minimum, and in accordance with its constitution or constitutional principles, each Party shall:

Interventions

Article 13 - Tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship

5. Parties are encouraged to implement measures beyond the obligations set out in paragraph 4.

7. Parties which have a ban on certain forms of tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship have the sovereign right to ban those forms of cross-border tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship entering their territory.

8. Parties shall consider the elaboration of a protocol setting out appropriate measures that require international collaboration for a comprehensive ban on cross-border advertising, promotion and sponsorship.
Comprehensive Ban of TAPS

- all advertising and promotion, as well as sponsorship, without exemption;
- direct and indirect advertising, promotion and sponsorship;
- acts that aim at promotion and acts that have or are likely to have a promotional effect;

- promotion of tobacco products and the use of tobacco;
- commercial communications and commercial recommendations and actions;
- contribution of any kind to any event, activity or individual;
- advertising and promotion of tobacco brand names and all corporate promotion; and traditional media (print, television and radio) and all media platforms, including Internet, mobile telephones and other new technologies as well as films.
Retail sale and display

- Display and visibility of tobacco products at points of sale constitutes advertising and promotion and should therefore be banned.

- Vending machines should be banned because they constitute, by their very presence, a means of advertising and promotion.
Packaging and product features

• Packaging and product design are important elements of advertising and promotion.

• Parties should consider adopting plain packaging requirements to eliminate the effects of advertising or promotion on packaging.

• Packaging, individual cigarettes or other tobacco products should carry no advertising or promotion, including design features that make products attractive.
Brand stretching and Brand sharing

“Brand stretching” occurs when a tobacco brand name, emblem, trademark, logo or trade insignia or any other distinctive feature (including distinctive colour combinations) is connected with a non-tobacco product or service in such a way that the tobacco product and the non-tobacco product or service are likely to be associated.

“Brand sharing” occurs when a brand name, emblem, trademark, logo or trade insignia or any other distinctive feature (including distinctive colour combinations) on a non-tobacco product or service is connected with a tobacco product or tobacco company in such a way that the tobacco product or company and the non-tobacco product or service are likely to be associated.
Internet sales and “Brand stretching” and “brand sharing”

- Internet sales of tobacco should be banned as they inherently involve tobacco advertising and promotion.

- “Brand stretching” and “brand sharing” should be regarded as tobacco advertising and promotion insofar as they have the aim, effect or likely effect of promoting a tobacco product or tobacco use either directly or indirectly. Parties should ban both.

OPS
Corporate Social Responsibility

• Tobacco companies seek to portray themselves as good corporate citizens by making contributions to deserving causes or by otherwise promoting “socially responsible” elements of their business practices.

• Some tobacco companies make financial or in-kind contributions to organizations, such as community, health, welfare or environmental organizations, either directly or through other entities.

• The Parties should ban contributions from tobacco companies to any other entity for “socially responsible causes”, as this is a form of sponsorship. Publicity given to “socially responsible” business practices of the tobacco industry should also be banned.
Depictions of tobacco in entertainment media

- The depiction of tobacco in entertainment media products, such as films, theatre and games, can strongly influence tobacco use, particularly among young people.

- Certification that no benefits have been received for any tobacco depictions

- Prohibiting the use of identifiable tobacco brands or imagery, requiring anti-tobacco advertisements

- Ratings or classification system that takes tobacco depictions into account
TAPS ban should apply to social media

- Tobacco companies now frequently utilize novel media platforms for TAPS activities such as social media sites and mobile phone applications.
- Influencers, spokespeople, and brandsponsored contests are used to promote tobacco products.
- Children and adolescents are particularly exposed to these platforms.

Countering Tobacco Industry Arguments

TOBACCO ADVERTISING AND PROMOTION
COUNTERING INDUSTRY ARGUMENTS

Industry argument: A ban on tobacco advertising won’t decrease tobacco consumption.
Response: Today, we have compelling evidence that comprehensive bans on tobacco advertising, promotion, and sponsorship can significantly reduce cigarette and other tobacco use. Research conducted between 1979 and 1992 in 22 countries found that comprehensive bans can reduce tobacco consumption by 6.3%. A study involving 38 developing countries between 1990 and 2001 showed that comprehensive bans resulted in a 23.5% reduction in per capita consumption.

Industry argument: Tobacco advertising, promotion, and sponsorship targets only adult smokers.
Response: Internal tobacco industry marketing plans reveal careful targeting of young people. Documents from R.J. Reynolds (RJR), released in 1998, show that the company sought to reverse its declining sales by targeting 14 to 24 year olds. RJR memos describe the success of the Joe Camel cartoon in France and state that the campaign was “about as young as you can get, and area right at the young adult smokers Joe Camel needs to attract.”

Tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship target non-smokers and youth in developing countries like Brazil, Mexico, and the Philippines.广告,促销和赞助活动针对非吸烟者和青少年在发展中国家如巴西,墨西哥和菲律宾。

A key defense strategy employed by tobacco companies appears to be to “throw a lot of mud at the wall, hoping that some of it will stick.”

Industry argument: Advertising, promotion, and product displays do not encourage people to start smoking; they just encourage tobacco brand loyalty, inform about available products and encourage current smokers to switch brands.
Response: This claim was answered best by David Akeb, chairman of British advertising agency Abbott Mead Vickers, in 1988. “I think arguments like shifting brands are just insulting in their shallowness. I think advertising has certainly helped to introduce new answers, be they women or be they in the Third World.”

A growing body of research confirms that tobacco advertising and promotional activities increase smoking initiation. A 2006 review of nine longitudinal studies involving more than 12,000 youth concluded that “tobacco advertising and promotion increase the likelihood that adolescents will start to smoke.” Point of sale advertising also encourages youth to start smoking. A study in the United Kingdom announced between 1990 and 2000 found that the each form of advertising, promotion and sponsorship increased youth smoking uptake.
